

NOMINATIONS FOR PRESIDENT BEING MADE

GOV. ALLEN OFFERS GENERAL WOOD IN ROUSING SPEECH

LOWDEN, COOLIDGE AND JOHNSON ALSO NOMINATED BY ENTHUSIASTIC SPEECHES

ROOSEVELT'S SISTER SECONDS WOOD'S NOMINATION IN FINE SPEECH—PLATFORM ADOPTED

Fourteen thousand delegates and spectators sweltering in the Coliseum this afternoon, heard four presidential candidates put in nomination before the republican national convention in the first four hours of its session.

The names of those presented were Major General Wood, Governor Lowden, Senator Hiram Johnson and Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts.

At 2:30 p. m. it was the intention of the convention officials to remain in session until all nominations for president are made and at least one ballot taken, but recess was expected to come at that time unless nomination is in sight.

HUGH BAILLIE
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Chicago, June 11—There was a lot of gaveling before Chairman Lodge could bring the republican convention to order at 9:58 this morning. Lodge's hammering continued for 3 full minutes before his voice could be heard.

The Rev. Johnstone Meyer of Chicago, delivered the invocation. The session got away to a good start, although half an hour late. Chairman Lodge first asked for order at 9:58 and at 9:59 the crowd was quiet. At 10:10 the chaplain was in the middle of his prayer. He prayed that the republican platform might please the Almighty and that the choice of the convention for president might also be the choice of God.

After the prayer Chairman Lodge recognized Hampton Moore, of Pennsylvania, who offered a resolution. The resolution provided that the convention record its sense of "inexpressible loss" in the death of Theodore Roosevelt. It was offered at this time because this is the first republican convention since Col. Roosevelt's death. The reading was greeted with applause, and cheers continued so Lodge could not put the question. The resolution was adopted by a rising vote.

Wood Nominated

Chicago, June 11—The republican convention today flung into the dramatic business of nominating a candidate for president.

The first nomination was that of Major General Leonard Wood. As the roll of states was called Alabama passed and Arizona yielded to Kansas.

Governor Allen began his speech in behalf of Wood.

"With full appreciation of the challenge of the hour, I present the name of the man who fits the hour—Gen. Wood," declared Gov. Henry J. Allen, of Kansas, in placing Wood in nomination before the convention.

Allen reviewed Wood's military and administrative career. He cited his work in Cuba where he established a stable government and put the country on its feet.

"He is a most successful civil administrator the country has known," Allen declared. Allen described how Wood was removed from command of the 59th division just before it sailed for France, and said: "This man is no whimper; he had bade farewell to the men he had trained and went back to Camp Funston to train another division."

Answering those who object to Wood because he is a soldier, Allen demanded to know, "since when has this uniform become the emblem of disqualification?"

Allen also went into Wood's recent acts especially when he took command at Gary during the steel strike.

For the fifth time the Socialist party has nominated Eugene V. Debs for the presidency. He is now in the penitentiary at Atlanta for violation of the espionage act.

Allen declared Wood dominated the situation with absolute justice.

"We meet it in a grave hour and what we do here will affect the generations."

"It is more important than it was four years, than it was eight years ago, than it has been since the city saw the nomination of Abraham Lincoln."

"You ask for a business man. We present to you a record of four years as governor of Cuba, a record which gained him international fame as the most successful civil administrator the country has known."

"Leonard Wood's services in Cuba constitutes a page in history which records the cleanest and most unselfish thing one nation ever did for a needy people."

"Possessing the highest degree of business capacity, it was something more than the work of a business man. It was the work of a statesman who had not narrowed his vision to purely business life. It was an accomplishment of a great national organizer. A president must be a business man and more, he must be a statesman. He must have a broad view of the international situation. He must know politics. The vague longing for a business man for president will not be satisfied by one who only knows business."

"A president must be able to interpret the shadow of coming events. We do not need to speculate concerning Leonard Wood's foresight."

"When the great war broke upon the consciousness of the American people with a terrific shock, it found that Leonard Wood had been preparing. We heard from him no platitudes about a million men springing to arms overnight. On his own initiative he established the Plattsburg training camp, created the first line of national defense and gave to the thousands of magnificent young Americans who volunteered a new definition of loyalty, a new opportunity for service, a new vision of their national obligation."

"While other men were preaching the need of keeping out of war, he sounded the reveille that awoke a slumbering nation and made victory possible. He insisted; he demanded, we must prepare."

"A plain blunt man with blunt beliefs in facts, he is today the best known American. In the frank expression of his beliefs there is no hidden motive. No candidate for high office has ever gone to the people of this nation with soul and mind so frankly revealed as Leonard Wood."

"As president he will not seek to create for himself a neutral background out of mediocre men. The nation will have that to which the people are entitled in its councils—the united brain power of real leaders."

The Coliseum was packed to the roof as Allen in his strong voice, audible to those in the highest gallery, fought his verbal fight for Wood's candidacy.

Governor Allen presented Wood's case like a man engaged in vigorous argument with an invisible opponent. There was enthusiasm in every gesture and he cut right into the applause not waiting for it to subside.

The first mention of Wood's name passed almost unnoticed. It was mentioned by Allen two times more in the next minute and each time there was applause, each time a little louder than the one before it.

Chairman Lodge then asked for a seconding speech to Wood's nomination. He announced each seconding speech would be limited to five minutes.

Delegate Knox, of New Hampshire, then rose and began a seconding speech for Wood. Knox said that speaking in behalf of the people of New Hampshire, he wanted to second Wood's nomination because he was "the greatest living son of that state." He termed Wood as a citizen of the whole United States.

"He has provincial qualities," Knox said. "He had the courage and vision to meet the present political situation."

Another seconding speech was made by Mrs. Corinne Roosevelt Robinson of New York, sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt. It was the first time a woman had made a seconding speech in a national convention. She was received with generous applause. Mrs. Robinson said that thousands of American mothers with faith in the foresight and vision of General Wood sent their sons overseas as fighting machines instead of cannon fodder.

She said she supported Wood, not because he was a friend of the late Theodore Roosevelt, but because he was of the Roosevelt type.

"Wood and Roosevelt have great characteristics in common," he said. "Wood has courage combined with common sense." Her voice rang clearly through the hall. She was dressed in black with a small feathered hat.

As she ended she cried: "Wood is the kind of a man who says come, and I want Leonard Wood." There was a pause of emphasis between each word as so vigorously did she pound the table that it rocked.

A huge life-size picture of Wood standing with Roosevelt, was lowered from the gallery.

As Governor Allen read the late Theodore Roosevelt's praise of General Wood, cheering broke out and continued until he motioned for silence. The cheering seemed to be plenty among the delegates but it did not involve all of them by any means. Many sat silent.

The perspiration streamed down Allen's face, his voice grew husky but he waxed more enthusiastic as he talked.

Governor Allen was so overheated that his glasses would hardly stay on his nose. He had to hold them in place with one hand when he glanced from time to time at his manuscript.

As Allen concluded the nomination of Wood a mighty yell went up. Showers of many colored feathers with Wood's name floated from the roof. Wood pennants were waved.

Repeated blasts from horns sounded in the gallery. Hundreds of delegates were on their chairs. The rain of feathers continued for several minutes. Evidently baskets of feathers had been concealed on the girder.

While the demonstration continued Lowden workers strode through the crowd distributing pennants bearing Lowden's picture in preparation for the Lowden ovation.

A Wood procession started around the hall chanting "Wood, Wood, Wood." At this juncture Lodge hammered for order, but did not get it.

Mrs. Fosseen, of Minnesota, was the only woman in the procession when it started.

Around and around the Coliseum the procession shouldered its way. In the middle of the delegates' section many stood on chairs watching but not participating.

Chairman Lodge repeatedly banged his gavel but was unable to get any attention.

At 11:11 a. m., after it had continued thirty-nine minutes, the Wood demonstration ended.

Governor Lowden Nominated

Chairman Lodge ordered the call of states resumed. Arkansas yielded to Illinois and Congressman Rodenburg began his speech nominating Governor Lowden.

The Arkansas delegates displayed photographs of Lowden. There was so much confusion Lodge had to beat for order before Rodenburg began.

OBREGON AND HIS WIFE

Gen. Alvaro Obregon, the conqueror of Carranza in the Mexican revolution, and his handsome wife, Senora Maria Tapia de Obregon.

Rodenburg, a heavy set man, spoke in a calm dispassionate fashion, his finger tips placed together as he described the conditions of unrest which he said existed in the country. He began using a few gestures, but they were restrained. Rodenburg stood on his tiptoes with his clinched fists raised on high as he prayed that "Good will speed the day when a better and braver pilot will be placed at the nation's helm."

It was 11:41 a. m. when Lowden adherents crowded into the aisles for their demonstration.

The Iowa delegation appeared with a great lithograph of the Illinois governor in the hall. It was a huge affair hoisted between two poles. There were many women in the line. Their shrill cheering was mingled with the louder sound of the men's voices. The delegates that were not marching stood up in their seats watching. In the procession a girl waving Lowden's picture was carried on the shoulders of two men.

Practically every delegate in the hall was mixed up in some way in the Lowden demonstration either as spectator or cheering or shouting along in the procession. The Lowden demonstration had been in session 15 minutes at noon and the noise had diminished slightly but there was no indication that the Lowden people were through with the demonstration. The people in the galleries were on their feet.

An old man was carried on the shoulders of two men, his eyes closed and mouth wide open and leaning far back yelling at the top of his voice, with a flag in each hand.

At 12:23 the Lowden demonstration concluded, lasting forty-two minutes, or three minutes longer than the Wood demonstration.

Representative Stemp, of Virginia, and National Committeeman Warren, of Michigan, at the height of Lowden's demonstration declared the governor would be nominated before the day was over.

"Nothing to it but Lowden," said Stemp, known to be an organizing man.

"Lowden has far more delegates than Wood and should win soon after the third ballot," declared Warren, who will cast his vote for Senator Johnson on the first ballot.

Murray Crane, member of the old guard, also predicted there would be few ballots.

During Lowden's demonstration it was learned that it is the present intention of the convention officials to keep the convention in session continually until nominations are closed.

Former Senator A. J. Beveridge of Indiana, took the gavel while Chairman Lodge was at lunch.

EXTRACTS FROM PLATFORM ADOPTED BY CONVENTION

COMMENDS THE LAST CONGRESS FOR CONSTRUCTIVE WORK IN COUNTRY'S INTEREST

CONDEMNS EXTRAVAGANT CONDUCT OF WAR AND CONTINUING WAR CONDITIONS

(By United Press)

The Platform

Chicago, June 11—Many of the most important planks of the republican platform today were expected to bring a direct challenge of the democrats in the convention at San Francisco.

The republican platform was adopted by the convention last night.

The democrats are certain to meet with bitter denunciation the claims of the platform that the last session of the national congress has a paralyzing record.

The democrats probably will vote the recommendations of the president that congress failed to enact certain statutes and placed the blame for present conditions on this failure.

The hand of the old guard seem parent to some extent in the business and financial section of the republican platform, and the democrats probably will make an appeal to labor claims that the republican are controlled by reactionary business interests.

The democratic attack probably will be directed at the guarantee sections of the railroad act.

A vigorous defense of the democratic conduct of financial affairs is expected to the republican attack on the direction of the federal reserve system. The high cost of living issue will be kicked back and forth in true political fashion it now seems.

The league of nations issue is not clearly defined in the republican platform and in this fight much will depend on the character of the nominee.

The following are pertinent extracts from the platform:

Chicago, June 11—The Republican party, assembled in representative national convention, re-affirms its unyielding devotion to the constitution of the United States and to the guarantees of civil, political and religious liberty therein contained.

It will resist all attempts to overthrow the foundation of the government or to weaken the force of its controlling principles and ideals, whether these attempts be made in the form of international policy or domestic agitation.

For seven years the national government has been controlled by the Democratic party. During that period a war of unparalleled magnitude has shaken the foundation of civilization, decimated the population of Europe and left in its train economic misery and suffering second only to war itself.

Complete Unpreparedness

The outstanding features of the Democratic administration have been complete unpreparedness for war and complete unpreparedness for peace.

Inexcusable failure to make timely preparation is the chief indictment against the Democratic administration in the conduct of the war. Had not our associates placed us both on land and sea, during the final 12 months of our participation, and furnished us to the very day of the armistice with munitions, planes and artillery, this failure would have been punished with disaster. It directly resulted in unnecessary losses to our gallant troops, in the imperilment of victory itself, and in an enormous waste of public funds literally poured into the breach created by gross neglect. Today it is reflected in our huge tax burden and in the high cost of living.

The strike or the lockout as a means of settling industrial disputes, inflicts such loss and suffering on the community as to justify government initiative to reduce its frequency and limit its consequences.

We deny the right to strike against the government; but the rights and interests of all government employees must be safeguarded by impartial laws and tribunals.

In private industries we do not advocate the principle of compulsory arbitration, but we favor impartial commissions and better facilities for voluntary mediation, conciliation, and arbitration, supplemented by that full publicity which will enlist the influence of an aroused public opinion. The government should take the initiative in inviting the establishment of tribunals or commissions for the purpose of voluntary arbitration and of investigation of disputed issues.

We demand the exclusion from interstate commerce of the products of convict labor.

The Overman act invested the president of the United States with all the authority and power necessary to restore the federal government to a normal peace basis and to reorganize, retrench and demobilize. The dominant fact is that 18 months after the armistice the United States government is still on a war-time basis and the expenditure program of the executive reflects war-time extravagance rather than rigid peace-time economy.

The president clings tenaciously to his autocratic war time powers. His veto of the resolutions declaring peace and his refusal to sign the bill repealing war-time legislation, no longer necessary, evidences his determination not to restore to the nation and to the states the form of government provided for by the constitution. This usurpation is intolerable and deserves the severest condemnation.

A Republican congress reduced the estimate submitted by the administration for the fiscal year 1920 almost $2,000,000,000, and for the fiscal year 1921 over $1,250,000,000.

Greater economies could have been effected had it not been for the stubborn refusal of the administration to co-operate with congress in an economy program. The universal demand for an economy budget is a reflection of the inevitable fact that leadership and sincere assistance on the part of the executive departments are essential to effective economy and constructive retrenchment.

The prime cause of the "high cost of living" has been first and foremost, a 50 per cent depreciation in the purchasing power of the dollar, due to a gross expansion of our currency and credit. Reduced production, burdensome taxation, swollen profits and the increased demand for goods arising from a fictitious, but enlarged, buying power have been contributing causes to a greater or less degree.

We are opposed to government ownership and operation or employment of the railroads. In view of the conditions prevailing in this country, the experience of the last two years, and the conclusion, which may be fairly drawn from an observation of the transportation systems of other countries, it is clear that adequate transportation service both for the present and future can be furnished more certainly, economically and efficiently through private ownership and operation under proper regulation and control.

The uncertain and unsettled condition of international balances, the abnormal economic and trade situation of the world, and the impossibility of forecasting accurately even the near future, preclude the formulation of a definite program to meet conditions a year hence. But the Republican party re-affirms its belief in the protective principle and pledges itself to a revision of the tariff as soon as conditions shall make it necessary for the preservation of the home market for American labor, agriculture and industry.

Free Speech and Alien Agitation

We demand that every American citizen should enjoy the ancient and constitutional right of free speech, free press and free assembly, and the no less sacred right of the qualified voter to be represented by his duly chosen representative; but no man may advocate resistance to the law, and no man may advocate violent overthrow of the government. But in view of the large numbers of people affected by the immigration acts, and in view of the vigorous malpractice of the departments of justice and labor, an adequate public hearing before a competent administrative tribunal should be assured to all.

T PAYS TO ADVERTISE—TRY IT

A 1920 SWEATER

By MARGARET ROHE
(Written for the United Press)
In sport coats of jersey
Smart looking, was Sue;
She'd no blouse beneath so
She smarting was too.

New York, June 11.—The purring brook goes on forever, but the purring that goes to make a sweater seems to have struck a sudden snag. At least so far as it concerns the summer girl of sports and to the summer girl of sorts, the purr of the sweater has become a purr of too great price, and as a novel sport garment she now likes the sweater—nil.

Indeed the cost of the pure silk sweater of medium weight and close weave has become almost prohibitive and the fibre and near silk affairs cost more than a sensible person (and there are still a few extinct) cares to invest in an imitation. Besides sweaters have been with and on us so many seasons that they have long since lost any spark of originality and novelty or snappy pep.

Fashion has given birth to only one new sweater this season and that is a short surplus affair of wool that ties around the waist in a sash and ends its arms above the elbow in cunning little round French sleeves. Of course these sweaters are nothing more nor less than knitted surplus blouses but they are most attractive in some hectic shade, finished around the neck and sleeves with a set of sheer white organdie collar and cuffs embroidered in gay hued yarn.

Worn with the smart new sport coats of wool jersey which have superseded the sweater as the swagger sport garment these collar and cuff sets are decidedly nifty. If the sport coat is a Tuxedo model worn open front, a vest of the wool embroidered organdie is added to make a four-some and a hit. It acts as a substitute for an entire blouse, for to be really up to scratch sartorially these sport coats are worn nearly next to Nature—at least without the aid of even a net blouse. When the thermometer climbs one truly has to be itching to be smart in order to stick to these sensu blouse effects. It often proves a bit embarrassing when a gallant escort insists on helping you off with your coat.

Besides being made of the plain white organdie, cross-barred and striped effects are used for these attractive cuff collar and vestie sets and also pastel tinted organdies as well. For wear with the lovely crepe silk white skirts of Fantasi, stunning coats of silk poplin in vivid shades of Jade, Flamingo, Corise and Egyptian blue are bound round cuffs, pockets and lapels in white with striking effect. With the wool jersey jackets, the serge and flannel skirts of plaid and stripes are smartest and for the all white pleated skirts of wool the crowdable popular and brilliant blazer are being revived with a vengeance. All sorts of color combinations, some dazzling and unprecedented stripes that cause the conventional Zebras and Penitentiary stripes to pale into radioactivity. One almost needs smoked san glasses as an eye protector against these dizzy blazer stripes that run riotous, up and down and always along the very best lines.

Color has also rushed to the head of the sailor topped sport girl. The smart but subdued black, brown or straw hued sailor is now outclassed by fiery red, vivid orange or jazzy jade ones and a perfect sweet pea of a sailor is one of sheenful lavender straw with a Georgette band of all the sweet pea shades. It is quite the last straw of perfection.

THE CITIZEN'S JOB

Good roads, women's dress reform and scholarship, may seem to be widely untreated subjects. Viewed as special interests, they have little in common. Viewed in the broad light of progress and enlightened citizenship, they all find an appropriate place on the program of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs.

The federation recently held its annual convention. In addition to the three subjects mentioned, the convention went on record as favoring household economy and forest conservation. It adopted resolutions endorsing the state thrift campaign, asking for a higher standard of scholarship among public school teachers and higher compensation for teachers.

If the women end their work with the resolutions they will not have accomplished very much. But if the resolutions serve simply as a public record of the things these women are intelligently interested in and actively working for, they will mark real progress. Good roads, efficient teachers with good salaries, forest conservation, thrift and household economy are all things in which every citizen should be concerned. Studying them, practicing them in home and public office and teaching their value to men, women and children alike, will help to make the resolutions effective. The good citizen's job includes all these things.

ROMER B. DIBELL

At the convention of the Minnesota Working People's Non-Partisan league held in St. Paul in March a number of the Duluth delegates advocated the endorsement of Homer B. Dibell of Duluth for associate justice of the supreme court. When Judge Dibell's name was presented to the convention it was contended that as he had been appointed to the supreme bench by Governor Burnquist a labor convention could not consistently endorse Judge Dibell, as such would be taken as an endorsement of the governor. Mr. George L. Seigel of St. Paul, a former labor representative in the legislature was thereupon endorsed for the position.

The political axiom of the American Federation of Labor is to "stand by our friends and oppose our enemies." Without the slightest disparagement to the candidacy of Mr. Seigel, The Labor World begs leave to remind its readers of the fact that few judges in American courts have shown the understanding of its high purpose as has Mr. Dibell.

It is a lamentable fact that labor men are prone to forget the old friends of their cause as new and more fervent ones come up. It is also true that they seldom forget an enemy. One of our good friends, in commenting on this characteristic of our make-up, puts it aptly: "The worker, not being a hero-worshiper, makes a poor booster and a good knocker."

Judge Dibell for a number of years graced the district bench in the Eleventh judicial district of which Duluth and St. Louis county are a part. During the street railway strike in the autumn of 1912 he refused to lend the use of his court to the street railway company and denied its attorneys an injunction to restrain the men from doing certain things which the law of the state permitted them to do. He also supported the city in mandamus proceedings against the company, a procedure supported by union labor at the time. Judge Bert Pesler, then a practicing lawyer, represented the street railway men's union in actions before Judge Dibell.

As a trial judge in the district court Mr. Dibell played an important part in modifying, and in some instances entirely abrogating, the rules of negligence and assumption of risk in master and servant cases under the old law of employers' liability. He habitually refused to take such cases from the jury, a custom long followed by our courts. As a result injured workmen were given such a square deal as they had never had before.

Later Judge Dibell was appointed a commissioner of the supreme court by the members of that court. He made good and in due time when a vacancy occurred on the supreme bench, upon the recommendation of the chief justice and his associates, Governor Burnquist appointed Mr. Dibell to fill it. His record as an associate justice of the supreme court is like that, if not better, than he made in the district court.

To be specific, we take pleasure in noting a few of his decisions:

One of the most important labor cases to come before the supreme court in the last few years was that of G. O. Miller Telephone Company vs. The Minimum Wage Commission, the decision in which was recently handed down.

That case involved the constitutionality of the statute known as the "Minimum Wage Law" and its validity was affirmed by the court. Justice Homer B. Dibell writing the opinion of the court.

The statute created a so-called minimum wage commission granting authority to the members thereof to inquire into the conditions and surroundings of working women and girls and after such investigation as was necessary to learn all the facts to fix and establish a wage which would provide a reasonable living to the women and girls affected; making the payment thereof compulsory on the employer. The statute was earnestly and vigorously assailed by some of the ablest lawyers of the state but the court sustained it in all respects. It was held up by the supreme court for some time after it had been argued and submitted, indicating a division of opinion among the justices, but all of them finally came to the views of Justice Dibell as expressed in his official opinion.

Under our make-shift workmen's compensation act an accident is defined as a personal injury resulting from a sudden, violent and external cause arising out of and occurring during the course of employment. It was held by attorneys for employers that freezing in the course of employment was not an accident within the Minnesota workmen's compensation act, and they had very good reason for pressing such a claim, but Justice Dibell, taking a broad view of the law, and the fact that many workmen are exposed in our cold climate to freezing, which results in temporary disability, frequently in permanent incapacity and sometimes death, held on the side of the workmen. He wrote the opinion in two cases (State vs. District Court, 128 Minn. 131, and Nelson vs. District Court, 128 Minn. 259) in which it was held that freezing in the course of employment was an accident within the Minnesota workmen's compensation act.

In another case (State vs. District Court, 129 Minn. 592) Justice Dibell laid down a sound and wholesome rule in holding that the driver of a delivery wagon, seeking shelter under a tree during a thunder storm and killed by lightning, was killed by an accident within the meaning of the compensation act and that his dependents were entitled to compensation. We recall while we were in Europe studying workmen's compensation our attention was called to a ruling then made by a British court in which it was held that death from lightning was not an accident within the meaning of the law of that time. Although it occurred during the course of employment, it "manifestly did not arise out of the employment." So it can be seen that Justice Dibell was not bound by former decisions against labor in dealing with a case of this kind. Indeed it afforded him an excellent opportunity to show how his mind runs and the sort of thinking that engages him which is revealed in his opinions.

Justice Dibell in another case (Dusha v. Virginia & R. L. Co., 176, N. W. 482) laid down a very salutary rule of law for the protection of miners engaged in hazardous occupations when he held that the defense of contributory negligence or of assumption of risk is not open to an employer employing an infant about dangerous machinery in violation of statute.

In still another case (Seamer v. Great Northern Ry., 142 Minn. 376) Justice Dibell wrote the opinion holding that the Railway Employers' Liability act of 1915, which abolished the fellow servant doctrine, the doctrine of comparative negligence and assumption of risk, and fixed no limit to the amount of recovery in the event of death, was constitutional, and that it applied to railway men though they were not exposed to the peculiar hazards of railroad operation.

We have given but a few of many opinions written by Homer B. Dibell as a commissioner and justice of the supreme court. They deal with fundamentals in which all workmen are vitally interested and with which they are concerned. Justice Dibell did not fail them. Can it be wondered, in view of the facts herein given, that a number of Duluth delegates to the state labor political convention wanted to endorse Justice Dibell for the supreme court?

The Labor World is not unmindful of the fine labor record of George L. Seigel as a member of the legislature, but we would be remiss in our duty if we failed to call public attention to the favorable attitude to labor of Homer B. Dibell.—Labor World.

FRISCO EXPOSITION SHOWS

Amples Park Board, All Newly Equipped, Coming Here Soon—Better Than Ever

Frisco Exposition with its own train of thirty heavily loaded cars, will reach here Sunday evening with such a gilded display of new wonder of carnivalism, comprising over 20 separate attractions, that will bewilder and astonish the amusement seeker, full particulars of which will be issued in ample time for all to arrange to see this splendid display. This early spring festival of joy will be entirely new in its offering, for this young man of genius, Chas. Martin, owner of the Frisco Exposition Shows, inventive ability and progressive methods has revolutionized the old street fair carnival into a modern praiseworthy exhibit of the world at your door.

This evolution was not accomplished over night, nor a day or month for Chas. Martin was, as the saying goes, to make a man, this young producer of meritorious outdoor entertainment has ever striven for the highest principle in amusement endeavor, realizing the fact that the final verdict is given by the public. It has always been his motto to see that every patron's money does its duty, for in these times of stress, and high cost of everything, he has proved that honest, clean methods and square dealing and good, high class, interesting shows are appreciated by every one in the big amusement class, and each year his scrupulous capital is reinvested in improvements and new inventions to increase the worth of his enterprise. This season every endeavor has been made to surpass all former efforts, and a generous public can rely on the time well spent when visiting this high class model amusement institution.

Where Big Industry Began.

The dilapidated old shack, still standing at Eastport, Me., is of interest by reason of its being the starting place of the great American sardine industry.

The experiment of converting the small herring into the canned sardine was tried out in this factory, built for that purpose by Julius Wolff, a Russian, and other New York promoters nearly forty years ago. At that time the picturesque weir, in which the fish are seined, usually joined the factory property.

From its birth, it this small factory, sardine canning has developed to almost the chief industry on the Maine coast, employing thousands of skilled workers each season, and has placed Eastport on the map as one of the most important fishing ports in the country.

Locomotive Rolled Over.

After a storm that buried the New England coast in snow last March, passengers on a railroad line through Rhode Island were amazed to observe a locomotive standing upright in a swampy brook that runs under the right of way at one point. The engine started out with a snowplow to clear the track, but jumped the rails at the brook trestle, the plow going one way and its motive power the other. Confronted, then, by the problem of removing the new obstruction, and not caring to devote three engines to getting one back on the track, the rail men cut the Gordian knot by rolling the big locomotive down the embankment. Despite the slide and bump, it finished right side up.—Nashua Mechanics Magazine.

Peculiar Disease.

Arithmomaniac—the medical name for another disease—is full of interest. In this the patient has the irresistible impulse to count a certain number of times before doing anything. One case recorded is of a girl who had to tap on the edge of the bed nine times before getting into it; a hundred times before brushing her teeth; to knock three times on a window by the side of the door, and a similar number of times on the door itself before she would unlock it.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody can Tell when you Darken Gray, Faded Hair with Sage Tea.

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy, soft and beautiful. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

BUDGET SYSTEM IS NOW CREATED

BUREAU IN THE OFFICE OF THE
PRESIDENT IS TO PREPARE
ALL THE ESTIMATES.

DIRECTOR WILL GET $10,000

Accounting Department Independent of the Executive, Also Is Established and Put Under the Direction of a Controller General.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington. — After some fifteen years of conversation about a budget system for the federal government, such a system has been provided. The function of preparing annually a budget is to be lodged in a bureau in the office of the president. There is to be a director of the budget, and an assistant director, who shall be appointed by the president and receive salaries of $10,000 and $7,500 a year, respectively. It will be the business of the bureau of the budget to make a careful investigation of all provisions of law dealing in any way with the preparation and transmission to congress of estimates, and the preparation and submission to congress of financial data of any character, in order to determine what changes should be made in provisions of law to the end that all requirements in respect to the reporting to congress of financial data and estimates shall be brought together in one place, co-ordinated, revised, and brought into harmony with the budget which the president is required to submit to congress. The results of the investigations made by the bureau of the budget are to be embodied in a report each year to the president, who is authorized to transmit the report to congress if he sees fit.

The president will, once a year, fix a date by which the heads of the several executive departments and all other officers shall submit to him estimates for the public service, and for the permanent appropriations not otherwise estimated for, and such estimates of the public revenues and condition of the treasury as the president may direct.

President to Submit Budget.

The new legislation makes it the duty of the president to send to congress on the first day of each regular session a document to be known as the budget. This budget is to contain balanced statements of the revenues and expenditures of the government for the preceding year and of the resources and liabilities of the treasury at the close of the year, his estimates of the revenues and expenditures of government for the current fiscal year and of the resources and liabilities of the treasury at the close of the year, also his estimates of the revenue and expenditure needs of the government for the ensuing fiscal year, and how, in his opinion, those needs shall be met.

There is also created a department to be known as the accounting department, which is to be an establishment of the government independent of the executive department and under the control and direction of the controller general of the United States. The office of the controller of the treasury and the assistant controller of the treasury are abolished to take effect July 1, this year. All other officers and employees of the office of the controller of the treasury are to become officers and employees of the accounting department at their present grades and salaries.

Controller General Created.

At the head of the accounting department there is to be created a new government officer who will be known as controller general of the United States, and there will also be an assistant controller general. The controller general will receive a salary of $10,000, and his assistant a salary of $7,500. The legislation transfers to the new accounting department all the powers and duties which the controller of the treasury and the auditors for the various executive departments now have. The legislation automatically abolishes the auditors for the departments. The incumbents of the offices are to be transferred at their present salaries to the accounting department.

Large powers are conferred on the controller general by the budget act. It will be his duty to investigate at the seat of government or elsewhere all matters relating to the receipts and disbursements of public funds and he must make to congress at the beginning of each regular session a report of work of the accounting department. He must make such investigations and reports as either house of congress may order. He must specially report to congress every expenditure or contract made by the head of a department in any year in excess of the appropriation for that department and in violation of law.

CAPT. S. S. COLE

Capt. S. S. Cole, custodian of the National cemetery at Camp Nelson, Ky., is the oldest employee of the American government, both in age and in point of service. He is ninety-four years old and is the only Mexican war veteran in the South. He enlisted in the American forces in 1845, fought through the Mexican and Civil wars, then engaged in campaigns against the Indians in the Northwest. He carries in his body an Indian arrow-head and a Confederate bullet. Captain Cole was appointed by Lincoln to the position he now holds.

THEIR LUCKY DAY

How Members of Camping Party
Found a Cook.

Finding of Manna in the Wilderness or Getting Water From Rock Would Not Have Been Wonderful
After That Experience.

It might seem reasonable to believe that in the wilderness the troubles and trials caused by cooks or the want of cooks could be comfortably left behind, but according to Mrs. Mary Roberts Rinehart such is not the case. So essential a place in the routine of a large camping party does a cook occupy that trouble with that important personage is a dire calamity. In "Tenting Tonight" Mrs. Rinehart gives her views on the subject and describes the nerve-racking experience of trying to keep hold of an unstable cook.

By the end of the second day, she says, we were well away from even that remote part of civilization from which we had started, and a terrible fact was dawning on us. The cook did not like us!

Now, the center of a camping trip is the cook. He has the hardest job that I know of. He cooks with inadequate equipment on a tiny stove in the open, where the air blows the smoke into his face and clanders into his food. Worse than that, he must cook not only for the party, but for a hungry crowd of guides and packers that sits in a circle and watches him, and urges him, and gets under his feet. He is the first up in the morning and the last in bed. He has to dry his dishes on anything that comes handy, and then pack all his "grub" on an unreliable horse and start off for the next eating ground.

So, knowing all this, and also that we were about a thousand miles from the nearest employment office and several days' hard riding to a settlement, we went to Bill with tribute. We praised his specialties. We gave him a college lad, turned guide for the summer, to assist him. We gathered up our own dishes. But gloom hung over him like a cloud.

A few days later the climax came. One afternoon we found a ranger's cabin and rode into its enclosure for luncheon. Breakfast had been early, and we were very hungry. We had gone long miles through the thick and silent forest, and now we wanted food. We sat in a circle on the ground and talked about food.

At last the chuck wagon drove in. We stood up and gave a hungry cheer, and then—Bill was gone! Some miles back he had halted the wagon, got out, taken his bed on his back, and started toward civilization on foot. We stared blankly at the teamster.

"Well," we said, "what did he say?"

"All he said to me was 'So long!'" said the teamster.

And that was all there was to it. There we were in the wilderness, far, far from a cook.

In savage silence we lunched out of tins. When we spoke it was to impose horrible punishments on the defaulting cook. In silence we finished our luncheon; in silence, mounted our horses. In black and hopeless silence we rode on north, moving every moment farther and farther from cooks and hotels and tables d'hôte.

At last in a clearing we saw a man sitting quite idly beside the trail. We rode up to him and said:

"Do you know of any place where we can find a cook?"

And this man, who had dropped from heaven replied:

"I am a cook."

So we put him on our extra saddle horse and took him with us. He cooked for us with might and main, dawn and night, until the trip was over.

NOMINATIONS FOR PRES.
IDENT BEING MADE

manager, was on the floor evidently taking a hand in managing the demonstration.

Charles Pickett of Iowa, seconded the nomination of Lowden.

From a reliable source at the Poindexter headquarters, it was learned that the senator plans to swing his support to Wood first and if Wood fails of nomination, then to Harding.

Pickett, warmed up for this task, and as he exceeded his limit, Chairman Beveridge toyed nervously with the gavel and then sent Secretary Gleason to remind the speaker of the five minute rule.

Lowden supporters also praised woman suffrage by sending Mrs. Fletcher Dobbin of Illinois, to make the second of the seconding speeches for their nominee.

Mrs. Dobbin was attractively dressed in a black gown and straw hat.

In the shortest speech of the convention, Mrs. Dobbin scored a tremendous hit by paying tribute to the candidates second nominating speech and withdrawing after using up less than two minutes of her allotted five.

In the name of the women of America, she seconded the nomination of Lowden.

Edward T. Morrow, of Kentucky, mentioned as the vice presidency candidate, was the next speaker to second Lowden nomination.

Johnson Nomination

Charles Wheeler of California, put in nomination the name of Senator Hiram Johnson.

The preliminary mention of Johnson's name brought forth only a very modest short-lived cheer.

Part of the Illinois and Iowa delegations led the cheers that followed his declaration, leaping to their seats.

Hiram Johnson, shortly after his nomination speech started, left his headquarters for the Coliseum, but it was stated he did not expect to appear on the floor.

The outset of Wheeler's speech was quietly received. Several of his pauses passed in silence.

A quotation from Lincoln, "A government of the people, by the people and for the people," got the first applause for Wheeler, but the crowd was slowly warming up.

While Wheeler predicted the nomination of Johnson and assured victory, there was but little applause, but when he said Johnson had won the greatest victory without a great financial backing, here was a chorus of laughter, boos and hisses.

Wheeler was forced to stop his speech and wait for quiet. Several spectators called to him from the galleries. It was the first evidence of display toward any single delegate made by the delegates on the floor.

The crowd renewed their calls and laughter and Wheeler was again forced to cease speaking. Beveridge was compelled to intercede. He urged delegates to be quiet, saying he hoped he would not have to use the gavel again.

There was more laughter at this. The Wheeler speech was not obvious. The speaker adopted a somewhat singsong tone. His voice weakened and he was frequently forced to moisten his throat. The result was a wave of restlessness swept over the crowd and there was a murmur and buzzing of conversation.

"The time has come to drive the bosses from the temple of republicanism," said Wheeler. Whoops and jeers from the delegates with the floor response followed. Wheeler concluded at 1:16 and the California delegates lifted a great American flag to start the demonstration. They began a procession around the room shouting "Hiram" through a megaphone.

The Michigan delegates also got up. The Johnsonites procured dozens of big American flags and filed behind Johnson's procession.

From the center of the gallery a picture of Johnson was unfurled. It was obvious however before the demonstration had been in effect long California delegates could not atone for the deadening and dampening effect of the nominating speech.

The volume of cheers did not compare with the noise that greeted the name of General Wood and Governor Lowden. The greatest majority of the delegation stood in the aisles conversing or standing by to see what was going on.

The California delegates persevered in an effort to recruit delegates from other states to their parade, but with little success.

At 1:44 Lodge called the convention to order. The demonstration for Johnson lasted only twenty-eight minutes.

Schall Seconded Johnson's Nomination. After quietness was resumed Rep. Thomas Schall, of Minnesota, blind congressman, was led forward by his eight year old son and started the first seconding speech for Johnson's nomination.

Just before the Johnson demonstration was concluded, Chairman Lodge told the United Press his idea was to go direct through the program without interruption, but that he did not know how long the delegates would stand for the heat and discomfort.

Schall, after the crowd had cheered him several minutes, started to speak. He had a penetrating voice and is an energetic person.

Mrs. Catherine Edson was called on behalf of Johnson for the seconding speech. She was dressed all in white. Her voice shook a little with nervousness at first.

Coolidge Placed in Nomination. The roll call was resumed and Connecticut yielded to Massachusetts. Speaker Gillett came to the platform to place in nomination the name of Governor Coolidge of Massachusetts.

Gillett was well received by the delegates as they were ready to help him along at every opportunity. He gave the convention a straight talking to about Coolidge, explaining why he could get the nomination, and emphasized the fact that he came suddenly to the floor in one year through his administration of governor of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Anna Carlisle Pfeiffer, of Massachusetts, seconded Coolidge's nomination as that of a "real American, born on the Fourth of July." She spoke slowly and carefully.

Butler is Nominated

The roll of the states resumed and Marion Butler, of North Carolina, was placed in nomination by Judge J. C. Pritchard of North Carolina.

Dr. Butler, Hoover and Harding Nominated.

4 p. m.—Dr. Nicholas M. Butler of New York, was sixth man nominated for the convention. The name of Herbert Hoover was the seventh presented. Senator Warren Harding was the eighth man nominated.

Hoover Placed in Nomination

"The people are calling Herbert Hoover to the office of president," Judge Nathan L. Miller of New York, declared today in putting him in nomination at the republican convention.

Miller defended Hoover against charges that he had spent too much time in foreign lands, that his republicanism was not stalwart. He reviewed Hoover's work, showing his administrative ability as head of the Belgian and his food control in the United States.

"I base the case for my candidate upon a record of achievement, known to you, known to the people of this country, known to the world, a record which demonstrates beyond dispute possession of those high qualities, those essential qualities which the present emergency demands, which the people of this country are demanding of the next president of the United States. I urge the nomination of Herbert Hoover of New York."

Sproul Nominated

4:30—Gov. Sproul of Pennsylvania, was the ninth nominee presented to the convention.

Poindexter and Sutherland Nominated

4:50 p. m.—Senator Poindexter was the tenth man nominated and Senator Sutherland was the eleventh man nominated.

Ballot Starts—Minnesota Votes 5:15 p. m.—The Minnesota vote on the first ballot was: Wood 19 Lowden 3, Johnson 2.

FIRST ABALLOT

Totals on the first ballot were Wood 287½, Lowden 211½, Johnson 127½, Harding 65½, Coolidge 34, Butler 69½, Hoover 5½, Poindexter 19, Sproul 84, Pritchard 21, LaFollette 24, Sutherland 17.

Heat By Nature's Method

You Can Enjoy
Caloric Comfort

Healthful Heat
Makes
Happy Homes

One of the simple laws of Nature tells you that warm air rises and cool air falls. This rule of Mother Nature explains the operation of the patented Caloric Pipeless Furnace. Entire House Heated Through One Register. The only register of the Caloric is divided into two channels; the inside channel carries the warmth from the furnace up into the house. This warm air rises and expands until every nook and corner of the rooms are thoroughly warmed. The outside channel, completely surrounding the inner warm-air channel, provides room for the return air to be drawn back from the house into the furnace. It naturally falls to the bottom of the furnace, passes up over the firepot, is purified, reheated, and again circulates into the home on its mission of comfort. The Caloric is truly a healthful furnace.

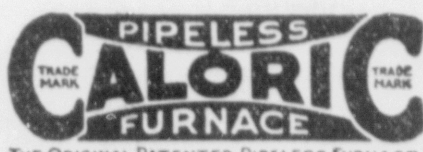

Saves One-third to One-half the Fuel

Because of its unique construction, the Caloric saves from one-third to one-half of the fuel. We can show you letters from thousands of users to prove that this is true.

Furnace Heat for Every Home

It is no longer necessary to tear away walls or put in expensive, heat-wasting pipes to have heat in your home; the Caloric can be installed in a very short time without interfering in any way with your present method of heating. It provides a splendid heating system for every home, old or new, bungalow type or three-story house, up to eighteen rooms.

Monitor Ironclad Guarantee

Every claim that is made for the Caloric is backed by an ironclad guarantee which is given with every furnace. This guarantee is signed by the makers, The Monitor Stove Company, a firm established in 1819, and the largest manufacturers of furnaces in the world. The guarantee is also endorsed by ourselves and we stand back of it to the limit.

Come to our store; let us show you the Caloric. Allow us to explain the scientific principles of this new method of heating. Come today! There is no obligation to buy; it will be a pleasure to show you the furnace which heats by Nature's method—the CALORIC.

PAVING FINANCED BY HOME PEOPLE

"Looks as if the Plan Will be Successful", said Alderman Andrew G. Anderson

MEN OF THE SHOPS ARE HEARD

Many are Voicing Their Approval of Plan of Purchasing Bonds to Carry on Paving

"It looks to me as if the street pavement will go," said Alderman A. G. Anderson. "Some of the men in the shops are voicing their willingness to either take bonds and many of those who have abutting property are willing to pay in advance."

Nothing new has been heard from those down town but it is thought that many public spirited folks who wish to use these main arteries of travel will lend a hand and subscribe for some of the city's paper.

All those living on these streets have paid for paving these streets one but owing to the fact that they are the main traveled streets they were quickly worn out. It is but justice that those living in other sections of the town but who use these streets give their heartiest assistance. Oak street leads to the most popular drive out of the city while Kingwood and Kindred streets lead to the best road and a very pretty drive out of the city.

Those in charge of the work expect that the developments of the next few days will decide whether the improvement can be made this year or not.

DOUBLE WEDDING

Miss Hannah Olson and Boyd Hamilton, Miss Nellie Olson and Geo. W. Wayte

A very impressive double wedding was solemnized Wednesday morning, June 9th, at 10 o'clock at the parsonage of the First Baptist church, when Miss Hannah Olson was united in marriage to Boyd Hamilton and Miss Nellie Olson united to George W. Wayte, by Rev. A. C. Smith, the ring service being used. Only the immediate relatives were present.

Both of the brides were tailor made suits and carried American Beauty roses. They were attended by Miss Mable Olson, sister of the brides and Sidrick Davis, of this city.

The brides are both popular young ladies of this city and are daughters of Mrs. Sarah Ralph, 1116 Norwood St. Miss Hannah Olson has been employed as clerk at Murphy's store and Miss Nellie Olson at the N. P. hospital. Mr. Hamilton is at present employed at the Buick factory in Flint, Michigan where he and his bride will locate. Mr. Wayte is employed at the Brainerd Gas Plant.

The best wishes for a happy future go with them.

Glines-Swenson

Ironton News: The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Peabody, of Riverton, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday, when William Henry Glines and Miss Agnes Swenson were married. The ring ceremony was used and Rev. Kelly officiated, the bride being given away by her mother, Mrs. Joakime Swenson, of Brainerd. The young couple will make their home in Riverton.

Taxes Lower Next Year

Minnesota taxes will be lower next year.

The announcement was made in the office of State Auditor Preus, in the face of predictions that although high this year, taxes would be still higher next year.

The new rate of taxation for state purposes will only be 3.78 mills, compared with 6.82 mills in the current year, according to the preliminary estimate which, it was said, will undergo slight if any change. The present special state levies of 1.23 mills for school and university and .05 mills for teacher's retirement funds, will remain unchanged under the law.

New Potato Exchange Selects Minneapolis

Minneapolis has been selected by the directors of the Minnesota Potato Exchange for permanent headquarters. The organization was formed last February by representative potato growers of the state and agricultural extension men from the state university. A general manager will be chosen soon, it is said, and steps taken for organizing a sales agency for Minnesota potato growers. Ludvig Mosback, president, predicts that 5,000 carloads of potatoes will be handled through the exchange next fall. While the potato acreage this year is 10 per cent below normal, says Mr. Mosback, he believes the shortage will be offset by the normal surplus that Minnesota annually produces.

CHAMBER COMMERCE MEETING TONIGHT

Land Clearing Party Putting on Demonstration at Pequot, to be in City Tonight

BUSINESS MEN ARE INTERESTED

Speakers Include Mr. Quanne, President of the Federal Land Bank

Special attention of the business men is called to the meeting of the Chamber of Commerce tonight promptly at 8 o'clock.

The land clearing party which is putting on a demonstration at Pequot has made arrangements to meet the Brainerd citizens and put on a short program on subjects pertinent to every live merchant.

H. W. Beverly in charge of the land clearing tour called up W. H. Gemmell, general manager of the M. & L., to emphasize the importance of this meeting to Brainerd business men.

The speakers include Mr. Quanne, President for the Federal Land bank, and especially a keen business man himself, with a message that no merchant can afford to miss.

Harry Funston of the Soo Line is also in the party. Mr. Funston needs no introduction. He is a big man, a live wire, and authority on the subjects which he will discuss.

Mr. Beverly urges every business man to attend this meeting tonight, and promises big returns for the short time so spent. It is emphasized that ladies are included in this invitation, and it is the desire of those in charge, that they make a special effort to attend.

Anderson-Bulger

Miss Emma Anderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson of 1324 Southeast Pine street, was married to Capt. John W. Bulger of Fresno, California, the ceremony taking place at the parsonage of the First Congregational church, Rev. Frederick Erickson officiating. The couple were attended by Robert Anderson, a brother of the bride, and by Miss Lilian Irwin.

The bride was radiantly pretty in a blue traveling suit and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridegroom was in army uniform. He was first stationed at Camp Dodge, Iowa, and has now been detailed to Michigan.

A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents, the rooms being handsomely decorated with flowers. Capt. and Mrs. Bulger went to Minneapolis on their honeymoon trip and later will go to Battle Creek, Michigan, where they will remain three months, Capt. Bulger having been detailed to Camp Custer.

The Dispatch joins their many friends in extending best wishes for their continued happiness and prosperity.

Arnesen-Hale

Miss Caroline Arnesen and Edgar Lawrence Hale were married at the court house by Judge J. T. Sanborn. The young couple were attended by Mrs. Josephine Lepard and William Arnesen.

Birthday Party

Little Miss Emily Cocks entertained nine of her little friends Thursday evening at the Best theatre and later at her home, the occasion being her tenth birthday. Miss Gertrude Slipp chaperoned the party.

TO DEBATE THE TONNAGE TAX

R. W. Hitchcock of Hibbing to Meet Frank Engman of Deerwood at Crosby Tonight

EVERY ANGLE TO BE DISCUSSED

Mr. Hitchcock Has Lived 15 Years on Range, Heads the Fair Tax Association

R. W. Hitchcock, chairman of the Minnesota Fair Tax Association, editor and publisher of the Hibbing Daily Tribune and member of the legislature, arrived in the city today from Hibbing and will debate with Frank Engman of Deerwood at Crosby this evening on the subject of a tonnage tax.

Mr. Engman will take the affirmative and Mr. Hitchcock the negative. The audience will judge as to the merits of the debate, it being a "no decision" contest.

Mr. Hitchcock has lived on the Mesaba range fifteen years and has been carrying on the propaganda against the tonnage tax, also having offices in St. Paul, from which a statewide campaign is being waged. The Crosby debate is the first one scheduled and will be interesting to all as setting forth every angle of the tonnage tax question.

Mr. Hitchcock said the Fair Tax Association is not engaging in politics, but simply presenting the facts to the people, being confident that their decision will sustain the Association in its contention that a knowledge of conditions is all that is needed to bring about a final defeat of a tonnage tax measure.

INVENTION OF SHERLUND COMPANY

Holder of Air Pipe for Car Service, Column Carries a Balanced Suspension Device

THE MOTORISTS APPRECIATE IT

Door Check in Center of Column Takes Up All Jar and Allows Nose to Swing Back Easily

The Sherlund company has built in its shops an air hose holder which is a novelty and its use is greatly appreciated by motorists. The column and arm stand 10 feet high. At a height of five feet from base there has been placed a section working on ball bearings and above same is a door check. A latticed arm extends outward like the arm of a hoist, carrying the hose to any angle and turning wherever needed. The motorist is able to reach any wheel of his car with the hose and when through he releases it and the balanced arm slowly pulls back the hose, the door check any sudden snap of the hose.

"Any garage can use its own tools and supplies and make a similar one," said Louis Sherlund, president of the Sherlund Company. The air hose elevator stands on the curb near the garage entrance.

WAR ARTICLES BEING REVISED

CODE OF MILITARY JUSTICE TO BE ALTERED SO IT WILL BE MORE UP TO DATE.

MAIN CHANGES TO BE MADE

New Regulations Designed to Obviate Trials on Trivial Charges and to Insure Justice for the Accused Persons.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—A revision of the articles of war is now under way. The senate and house committees on military affairs are in substantial agreement as to the changes that shall be made in the present articles. A bill embodying the proposed changes has been reported favorably by the house committee.

Following are the salient features of the revision:

1. A charge must be preferred under oath, by any person subject to military law.
2. Speedy but thorough and impartial preliminary investigation will be had in all cases.
3. Under the proposed revision commanding officers will be brought more frequently into personal contact with alleged offenders.

4. Disciplinary punishments, properly limited, are preferred to trial.
5. Neither trial nor punishment on trivial charges, no action by a court when disciplinary action is sufficient, no trial by either special or general court-martial when an inferior court can properly dispose of the case.

Junior Officers Affected.
6. Junior officers made subject to disciplinary punishment as well as enlisted men.

7. Punishing power of summary courts reduced to one month, in order the sooner to return offenders to a duty status.

8. Summary and special courts' power of forfeiture reduced to two-thirds of soldier's monthly pay in order that funds for laundry, toilet necessities, etc., may be available.

9. Maximum limitations of membership in court in special and general courts-martial removed, to prevent technical reversals in some cases; not to increase the size of courts, as quality is more important than quantity.

10. All members of the various courts to be the best available for the duty—age, training and judicial temperament considered.

11. Law member of general courts-martial provided.

12. The right to counsel fully recognized. Defense counsel and assistant defense counsel, when needed, provided.

13. The oath of the trial judge advocate is changed to insert an allegation to faithfully and impartially perform his duty.

14. Provides for one peremptory challenge for each side, the law member, however, being subject to challenge only for cause.

15. Embodies in statutory form the existing practice requiring reference to a staff judge advocate for his action and advice before referring charges to a general court-martial or acting on the proceedings thereof.

Unanimous Vote for Death.
16. Death sentence to require a unanimous vote of the court.

17. For convictions other than death, two-thirds vote instead of a majority required.

18. Acquittals to be announced by the court.

19. No recommendation of acquittals, and no increase of sentence on revision or new trial.

20. Certain convictions, under regulations, to be announced by the court.

21. The proposed revision authorizes the president to prescribe limits of punishment in time of war as well as in time of peace.

22. Provisions for an adequate legal review of all trials by general court-martial and for effective appellate power.

23. Provides that persons not subject to military law, who commit acts in connection with any court-martial, made punishable by the provisions of chapter six of the act of March 4, 1909, United States statutes at large, shall be punished as provided in said act.

During the war and since its close there has been much controversy regarding the system of military justice as administered in the armies. Some of the critics have overlooked the fact that the articles of war were revised only four years ago. However no thorough consideration at that time could be given the matter, at least by the house, and as it was thought the adoption of the proposed revision would meet the requirements at that time it was enacted into law. Since the close of the war attention has been frequently called to the fact that the present code is archaic and out of date; that we have not kept pace with other nations in such matters, and that we were going too far back into the past for our plan of administering military justice.

Suspicious.

Descendants of Noted
Indians Will Represent
Oklahoma Democrats

Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson

Mrs. Richard L. Fite

Two women descendants of Indians will represent Oklahoma at the Democratic National Convention at San Francisco. They are Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, descendant of a chief of the once might Delaware Nation, and Mrs. Richard L. Fite, one of whose ancestors was Sequoyia, inventor of the Cherokee alphabet.

Making the Desert

An ingenious method which a thoughtful wife invented to keep her good man cool is described in Travel. She sent down from town "a quantity of canvas or burlap, which was to be strung on wires along the windward side of the veranda. The poor, panting man was to take his seat there, lightly arrayed, and spray water on the screen with a hose. The resulting evaporation would temper the breeze to a fair degree of comfort." The burlap-and-hose combination it seems, plays a prominent part in California desert household economy.

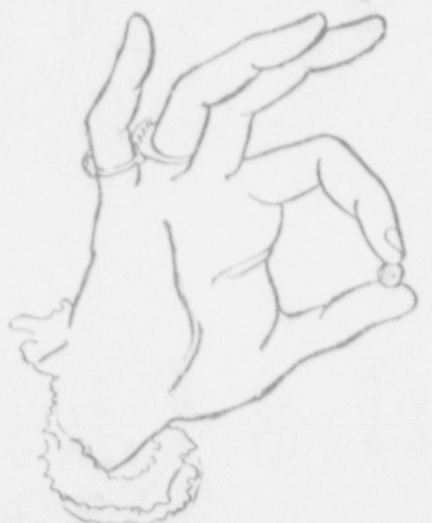

Kindly Advice.

Fido had come under the heel and refused to come out. His mistress came in and sternly bade him come forth. Little Grace bent down and said, "Fido, if you know mamma, you'll come quick!"

LIFT OFF CORNS!

With fingers! Corns and calluses lift off. No pain!

Magic! Just drop a little Frezzone on that touchy corn, instantly it stops aching, then you lift the corn off with the fingers. Truly! No humbug!

Try Frezzone! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without one particle of pain, soreness or irritation. Frezzone is the discovery of a noted Cincinnati genius.

PARTY CHOICE STILL A GUESS

BEST OF POLITICAL PROPHETS CAN'T FORETELL WHAT THE REPUBLICANS WILL DO.

WOOD HOLDS THE LEAD YET

At Least Eleven Candidates Will Be Formally Placed in Nomination in the Chicago Convention—Democrats
Are Watchfully Waiting.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington.—Even the best of the political prophets are in doubt as to what the Republican national convention, now at hand, will do. The situation is very much like that which existed four years ago when the Republicans nominated Charles E. Hughes for president. There is a large field of candidates, with one man, Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, considerably in advance of the other entries. It is now certain that when the convention is called to order it will be the field against Wood or Wood against the field. Four years ago 17 persons were voted for on the first ballot. Probably not that many will be complimented in this convention, but it is not possible to say precisely how many men will be voted for.

It appears that at least eleven candidates will be formally placed in nomination. The list includes Leonard Wood, of the country at large; Senator Hiram W. Johnson, California; Gov. Frank O. Lowden, Illinois; Senator Warren G. Harding, Ohio; Gov. Calvin Coolidge, Massachusetts; Senator Philander Knox, Pennsylvania; Senator Howard Sutherland, West Virginia; Judge J. C. Pritchard, North Carolina; Senator Robert M. La Follette, Wisconsin; Senator Miles Polk, Washington; and Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university.

Wood in the Lead at Start.

There is no disposition in any quarter to question the statement that more delegates are instructed to vote for General Wood than for any other candidate, and it is conceded that he will get the votes of a good many of the uninstructed delegates on the first ballot. Men who have made careful calculations as to the probable strength of each of the candidates on the first ballot very generally give Governor Lowden second place, and Senator Johnson third place. Most of the political writers are inclined to take the view that the nomination will go to Wood, Lowden or Johnson. They confess that there is not very much evidence on which to base safe judgment along this line.

Apparently there will be a contest waged in the convention between the conservatives and the progressives in the party. This show of strength may develop in the organization of the convention, or on the adoption of a platform. If either element should display commanding strength that vote would undoubtedly have some effect on the outcome of the contest for the presidential nomination.

The outcome of the contest for the nomination for president will depend on the ability of the field, so called, to get together on a candidate. In this connection it is recalled that four years ago Justice Charles E. Hughes went into the convention as the leader with a vote of 153 on the first ballot, and the rest of the convention strength scattered among 16 men. Heroic efforts were made to concentrate the strength of the field on a candidate, but they failed and the result was a break to Hughes.

An unusually large number of uninstructed delegates will sit in the Republican convention. Generally speaking, they will be unbiassed.

Democrats Are Watching.

The Democrats are sitting tight in their observation seat. When they get to San Francisco they will have before them the record made by their adversaries at Chicago. In their pre-convention talk William G. McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, has the best of it, but there is a good deal of conversation going on to the effect that the nomination must not be made before the delegates reach the convention city; that the convention should hold itself in readiness to meet the action of the Republican convention in the most effective way. In this connection, for instance, it has been suggested that if the Republicans should nominate a conservative and adopt a conservative platform, the Democrats would probably wish to take a candidate of rather radical tendencies and to make a platform that would carry some appeal to the radicals among the voters.

During the week there has been more talk than ever before about the availability of Vice President Thomas R. Marshall as the party's candidate for president. The vice president insists that he is in no sense a candidate, but he confides to his friends the information that he likes to see his name mentioned in connection with the nomination, nevertheless. It now seems probable that the leaders among the Democrats will have agreed on the main points of the party's platform before the convention opens. They wets in the party have given up all hope of persuading the convention to take up their cause.
